Granger is situated on the west bank of the Bay, and near the Lake shore at the mouth of Rocky River, Cuyahoga County, State of Ohio. The fine harbour for vessels of burthen, the fisheries, with many other natural and geographical advantages, few Towns on the south side of Lake Erie, if any, can vie—the adjoining country is fertile, fine water, gentle ascents and descents, seats for mills and other works are numerous on durable heavy streams of water—the settlement progressing beyond any reasonable supposition. Last November a sale was held on the premises, where considerable Lots were sold, several of which will be improved this season, and now, at the solicitation of several who wish to purchase property for settling, the proprietors are induced to offer such portion as will answer those who incline residing at that place.

POETRY.

FROM THE MIRROR OF TASTE.

The following portrait of one of the finest old men in Europe, a highland chieftain, now living, is recommended not only by the neatness of the versification, but by the fidelity and truth of the drawing.

MACNAB OF MACNAB.

MARK well that old man, whose fine flowing hair,
'Neath his bonnet, the west winds in sportiveness fan,
Majestic his step, and so courteous his air,
'Tis MACNAB of MACNAB, the head of the clan.

In the true garb of Scotia, the chieftain is dress'd,
Sparkling and black waves the plume o'er his brow,
His plaid o'er his shoulder, and tartan his vest,
While his old knees the kelt and the fillabeg show.

Tho' oft the foul tempest has roar'd o'er his head,
And the snow storms of winter have clouded the sky,
Yet the tinge of his cheek is ruddy and red,
And the diamond's fine lustre still shines in his eye.

The chief, should the foes of G. Britain e'er land,
His *claymor would take, unacquainted with fear;
The pybroch † of Macnab would sound o'er the strand,
And warn all the clan that the foemen were near.

Full oft may the long year his courses perform,
And with smiles, each return, greet this famous old man,
And ne'er may Misfortune's dark gathering storm,
Strike Macnab, of Macnab, the chief of the clan.

* The broad-sword. † The war-pipe.

INTERESTING EXTRACT.

Testimonies in favour of the BIBLE, by celebrated Characters.

The celebrated Sir William Jones, at the end of his Bible, wrote the following words:—"I have regularly and attentively perused these Holy Scriptures; and am of opinion, that this volume (independently of its divine origin) contains more true sublimity, more exquisite beauty, more pure morality, more important history, and finer strains of poetry and eloquence, than can be collected from all other books, in whatever age or language they may have been written. The unstrained application of them to events which took place long after the publication, is a solid ground for belief that they are genuine productions, and consequently inspired."

Mr. Addison, speaking of the superior perfections of the Sacred Volume to every human work, says the great and glorious truths which it discovers to us are, compared to those which we elsewhere acquire, as the creator contrasted with his works. "Had Cicero," says he, "lived to see all that christianity has brought to light, how would he who so fondly hoped for immortality, have lavished out all the force of eloquence in those noblest of contemplations—the Resurrection, and the Judgment that will follow it: How had his breast glowed with pleasure, when the whole compass of futurity, revealed in these pages, lay open to his view! How would he have entered, with the force of lightning, into the affections of his hearers, upon those glorious themes, which are contained in the Bible—themes, which when enlarged on by a skilful christian orator, make us break out into the same expressions, as those of the two disciples who met our Saviour, after he rose from the dead: "Did not our hearts burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened unto us the scriptures?"

The learned Mr. Locke, (after demonstrating the truth of the holy scriptures in various ways) thus expressed himself in a letter to a friend, just before he died:——"Study the holy scriptures, especially the New Testament; for therein are contained, the words of eternal life. The Bible has God for its author, Salvation for its end, and truth for its matter, without any mixture of error."

Similar testimonies in favor of the Bible might be adduced in the immortal Bacon, lord Verulam; in the great sir Isaac Newton, who wrote to prove the excellence of the scriptures—in Mr. Boyle, who instituted means to elucidate their truth, in Mr. West, who wrote a treatise on the subject of the resurrection; in lord George Lyttleton, whose illustrious rank received splendor from his talents, and who has done essential service to the christian cause by his admirable work on the conversion of St. Paul; all these it will be observed were laymen, and therefore cannot be suspected of any undue partiality for the Scriptures, and to such distinguished names might be added those of a Milton, a Hale, a Johnston, a Cowper, a Bryant, a Beattie, a Cumberland—laymen also most eminently distinguished for their learning and science, yet who deemed all their learning, all science of little worth compared with what they derived from the Book of God.

The excellent Dr. Watts, (in his advice to a young man) says: "Whatever your circumstances may be in this world, value the Bible as your best treasure; and whatever be your employment, look upon religion as your best business. The Bible contains eternal life in it, and religion is the only way for you to become possessed of it."

Dr. Leachman, upon his death bed, thus addressed the son of a nobleman who had been under his care; "You see my young friend, the situation in which I now am. I have not many days to live, and am happy that you witness the tranquility of my last moments. But it is not tranquility alone; it is joy and triumph—nay, it is complete exultation." His features brightened, and his voice rose in energy as he spoke. "And whence," said he "does this exultation proceed? From that Book," said he, pointing to the Bible:—"From that blessed book, too much neglected indeed, but which contains invaluable treasures! treasures of bliss and rejoicing, for it makes us certain that this mortal shall put on immortality."

Judge Hale, in a letter to his children, says, "It has been my practice to require you to be frequent in reading the Scriptures, with due observation and understanding, which will make you wise for this world, and that which is to come." And in a letter to his son, he says, "There is no book like the Bible for excellent learning, wisdom and use; it is want of understanding in them who think or speak otherwise."

Lord Rochester, in his last illness, would frequently lay his hand on the Bible, and say, "There is true philosophy. There is the wisdom that speaks to the heart. A bad life is the only grand objection to this book."

Sir John Earldly Wilmot, in a letter to his eldest son, expresses himself in these words: "Let me exhort you to read with the greatest attention both the Old and New Testaments, you will find your mind extremely becalmed by so doing, and every tumultuous passion bridled by that firm belief of a resurrection, which is so evidently marked out and impressed upon mankind by Christianity."

Dr. Samuel Johnson, in his last illness, called a young gentleman, who sat up with him during the night, to his bed side, and addressed him in these words: "Young man attend to the advice of one who has possessed a certain degreee of fame in the world, and who will shortly appear before his Maker. Read the Bible every day of your life."

BONAPARTE AT ST. HELENA.

THE Minden, lately arrived from India, touched on her passage home at St. Helena. Two days previously to her sailing from that island, Bonaparte had removed, with his companions, from his temporary residence, (Mr. Balcombe's house) to his permanent one in the interior of the island, called Longwood. It is situated on the top of a hill, and is the only flat piece of ground on the island. It is nearly three miles in circumference, with a good road and walks for exercise. He was accompanied to this spot by Sir G. Cockburn, Capt. Mackay, and Mr. Glover, secretary to Sir George. Upon entering the house, he expressed himself much gratified at the pains which had been taken to render his abode comfortable. He had visited the house on his first arrival, when it was in a state of disorder, and the great change it had undergone in so short a time, apparently excited his gratitude. He is in good health, and we are assured, does not discover any depression of spirits from his fallen circumstances. The arrangements made at St. Helena by Sir George Cockburn, for his safe custody, are said to be admirable, and strictness and punctuality are worked into a perfect system. Two sloops of war are constantly cruising in sight of the island, one to leeward, the other to windward, and between which and the signal posts on the island, there is an incessant communication kept up. No vessel of any description can possibly approach the island, without being discovered by these cruizers. The island of Ascension has been fortified, and a party of men landed to garrison it.

THOUGHTS ON WAR.

By the celebrated Dr. JOHNSON

"It is wonderful with what coolness and indifference the greater part of mankind see war commenced. Those that hear of it at a distance or read of it in books, but have never presented its evils to their minds, consider it as little more than a splendid game, a proclamation, an army, a battle, and a triumph. Some indeed must perish in the most successful field, but they die upon the bed of honor—resign their lives amidst the joys of conquest, and filled with England's glory, smile in death. The life of a modern soldier is ill represented in heroick fiction. War has means of destruction more formidable than the cannon and the sword. Of the thousands and tens of thousands that perished in our late contest with France and Spain, a very small part ever felt the stroke of an enemy, the rest languished in tents and ships, amidst damps and putrefactions; pale, torpid, spiritless and helpless, gasping and groaning unpitied among men made obdurate by long continuance of hopeless misery, and were at last whelmed in pits or heaved into the ocean, without notice and without remembrance. By incommodious encampments and unwholesome stations, where courage is useless, and enterprise impracticable, fleets are silently dispeopled, and armies sluggishly melted away. Thus is a people gradually exhausted, for the most part with little effect. The wars of civilized nations make very slow changes in the system of empire, the public perceives scarcely any alteration but an increase of debt, and the few individuals who are benefitted, are not supposed to have the clearest right to their advantages. If he that shared the danger, enjoyed the profit and after bleeding in the battle grew rich by the victory, he might show his gains without envy. But at the conclusion of a ten year's war, how are we recompensed for the death of multitudes, and the expense of millions, but by contemplating the sudden glories of paymasters and agents, contractors and commissaries, whose equipages shine like meteors, and whose palaces rise like exhalations. These are the men, who, without virtue, labor or hazard, are growing rich as their country is impoverished; they rejoice when obstinacy or ambition adds another year to slaughter and desolation, and laugh from their desks at bravery and science, while they are adding figure to figure and cipher to cipher, hoping for a new contract from a new armament, and computing the profits of a siege or a tempest."

SINGULAR STORY.

STRASBURGH, (Germany) Dec. 28.

The following letter has been addressed to a very respectable person in this city:

Heidelberg, Dec. 25.

"The whole conversation of this place has been occupied for some days by what is passing at the extreme frontier of the Grand Duchy of Baden, some leagues from our town, up the Neckar. According to an old tradition almost forgotten, there used to be heard formerly at Roterburg Castle, a hollow sound, prolonged for some time, on the eve of some extraordinary event. This castle is situated on the confines of Baden, Darmstadt, and Wurtemberg, a league to the east of Sickheim, a small town on the great road of Heilbronn. This singular noise has just been heard four successive days. On its commencement, a courier was sent to inform the government at Carlsruhe of the circumstance. The Grand Duke nominated and sent off a commission of men of science, at the head of which was the celebrated Beekmann, professor of physic and chymistry at Carlsruhe. This commission arrived time enough to be ear witness of what surpasses even the marvellous in the Arabian tales. They heard very distinctly the march of troops, the clanking of arms, the sound of the drum and military music, the movement of the baggage waggons, and a numerous train of artillery, and at last a grand cannonade and musketry fire! This noise lasted, without interruption, a night and a day; it appeared to issue from the castle of Roterburg, in a direction from east to west, traversing a space of 4 leagues in length, by a quarter in breadth. The population of Sickheim and its environs, together with a crowd of curious people from Heilbronn, Neckargemund, and Heidelberg, witnessed it—the process verbal of the whole has been signed by all the civil administrators and heads of corps cantoned near the spot. We at first hesitated to send you this recital, because it has all the air of a tale invented to impose on credulity; but at last we resolved to communicate it, such as it is generally stated, as a fact attested by a thousand witnesses. We await, however, with impatience, the official report of the scientific persons sent to investigate the affair by the Baden government.

The same correspondent, under date of the 26th, transmits to us the following details:

"The unaccountable phenomenon of the castle of Roterburg, which we must absolutely refuse to credit until there shall be an official publication on the subject, continues to afford matter for universal conversation. It is said that there exists in the archives a periodical series of more than 80 process verbal relating to occurrences of this king.

Classical Hotel.

GEORGE HAVEN, takes this method to inform the public, that he has (partly) compleated his long premeditated plan, of furnishing a suitable retreat for the beau monde of the City of Pittsburgh, at the pleasantly situated Brick House, one mile from Town, between Billy Price's Round House, and the Four Mile Run—where the Statesman may find a stimulus to Patriotism—the Classic Idler, Poet and Philosopher, fresh inspiration—the more industrious, though not less reputable Merchant and Tradesman, drive away "dull care" by the proper use of the following articles:—

SOUND ARGUMENTS.	NECESSARIES
Gammon and Eggs,	Bread, Porter,
Beef, Mutton,	Butter, Beer,
Venison, Fish,	Mead, Vegitables
Fowls, &c. &c.	Coffee, Tea,
	Sauce, &c. &c.
SUPERFLUITIES.	GRIEVANCES
Wine, Brandy,	Pepper,
Spirits, Whiskey,	Mustard,
Gin, Cakes,	Vinegar,
Pies, Tarts,	Pickles,
Turtle Soup, Sugars,	&c. &c.
Custards, &c. &c.

The above articles will be exchanged, on reasonable terms, for dollars, dimes, cents, or bank bills. He flatters himself that the gentlemen who favour him with their custom will not think it superfluous, nor take it as a grievance, if they should be prevailed upon by sound arguments, to deem it necessary to make immediate payment—or approved credit, for thirty, sixty or ninety seconds, or as long as one can hold his breath.

From the liberality of the terms—the neatness and airy situation—and unremitted attention he hopes to receive a share of patronage—at least from those who think with a favourite author, that

"The Mouse who is content with one poor hole
"Can never be a Mouse of any soul."

And whilst he solicits the patronage of his friends and the public, he would not forget to invoke a blessing from his tutelary deity, the god of feasting—Epicurus de Grege Porcum.

O thou whose power, directs the feast,
When Bishop, Alderman or Priest,
Meet here to sup or dine;
Here at my Temple day by day,
Their willing homage let them pay,
And worship at thy shrine.

To them, O, be it ever known,
Whene'er my loaded tables groan,—
And then (if such thy will)
Grant them an appetite (pray I.)
That they may drink, and yet be dry,
May eat, yet never fill.

Enlarge their mouths, extend their jaws,
Preserve their teeth from aches and daws,
Their grinders from decay;
O let their swallows be so wide,
That thumping slices down may glide,
Nor aught obstruct the way.

To thee thy humble suppliant prays,
O let them pass their nights and days
(From gout and surfeit free)
Midst Venison, Ortolans, Ragouts,
Turtle and Turbot, Soups and Stews,
Roast, Boil'd and Fricaseed.

April 20, 1816.

Dissolution of Partnership.

THE partnership heretofore existing under the firm of HAMILTON & WETHERILL, was dissolved by mutual consent on the 12th day of April, 1816. All persons indebted to said firm are requested to make immediate payment, and those having accounts against the same will please present them to JESSE HAMILTON, who is duly authorised to settle them.

JESSE HAMILTON,
W. H. WETHERILL.

The business in future will be carried on by the subscriber, who intends always to keep Spirits, Brandy, Gin, Wines, and Cordials of all kinds and of the best quality, which he will sell on moderate terms for cash or approved notes. From attention to business, he hopes to merit a share of public patronage.

JESSE HAMILTON.

OBITUARY.

DIED, suddenly, on the morning of the 30th ult. General JOHN WILKINS, in the fifty fifth year of his age, and for more than thirty years, an inhabitant of this city.

No man in our country deserved, or possessed in a higher degree, the confidence and the affections of all who knew him:—His mind was vigorous, prompt, firm, intrepid:—his knowledge extensive, correct, practical—and his heart ever awake to the best sympathies of humanity was generous even to a fault, open, candid in all its intercourse with society, sincere and ardent in its friendships, and most happy, when most engaged in good offices to all with whom he associated.

When very young, General Wilkins joined the army, and was a partaker in the privations, the perils, and the glory of the revolutionary war. Since he became resident here, he was elected a Representative in the Executive Council of the State, and became also one of our Judges of the Court of Common Pleas. In 1796, he was appointed Quarter Master General of the Army of the United States, which office he held until it was abolished by law in 1803.

In public as well as in private life he displayed a character of pure integrity, unblemished honor, well directed energy, and active beneficence in all his pursuits:—The western country will forever remember with gratitude his exertions to extend our interior commerce—to promote every useful enterprise or improvement, and to establish durably our manufactures;—nor will it be forgotten, that in him the unfortunate always found the heart and the hand to assist those who were desirous of making honorable efforts for themselves.

WILLIAM PINKNEY, of Maryland, has resigned his seat in the House of Representatives of the United States, having been appointed by the President and Senate, Minister Plenipotentiary to Russia and Special Minister to Naples.

STEAM BOAT.

A Steam Boat owned by a company of gentlemen of Lexington, was to sail for New Orleans on the 21st ult. from near the mouth of Hickman creek. We are informed, says the Kentucky Gazette, that she is to be worked on a plan invented by Mr. West, of Lexington, near twenty years ago, and in a manner distinct from any other steam boat now in use. On trial against the current of the Kentucky, when that river was very high, she more than answered the sanguine expectations of her owners and left no doubt on their minds that she could stem the current of the Mississippi with rapidity and ease.

A London paper of February 8, states, that the transport Seahorse, has been wrecked near Tramore. She was returning to England with the 59th Regiment, which had been engaged in the battle of Waterloo. Twelve officers, 82 soldiers, 14 sailors, 30 women, and 5 children, were lost—only 32 persons were saved.

The Auction Sales Tax, paid by Messrs. Hones & Town, of New-York, during the last year, was $ 151,592 30, on account of sales $ 6,379,615.

The following paragraph, word for word, we copy from the New-York Columbian, a democratic paper.

Reformation and counter revolution.—The republican gain in one year in the New England states is estimated at 5000; whilst in Congress, the republican representatives are taking federal ground and adopting federal measures in the highest tone. The recommendations of Alexander Hamilton are more successful than if he were alive to vindicate in debate what he had written in his closet. When the Tartars conquered the Chinese, they adopted Chinese dress and customs: so, when the democratic party have gained the victory over federalism, they assume federal doctrines, language, costume and—every thing but the name.

A volume could not say more in favor of federalism.]

Thomas Jefferson in his Revolutionary Costume.

[FROM THE VIRGINIA PATRIOT.]

In a letter written by Mr. Jefferson in 1810 he says: "I am sincerely one of those who wish for re-union with Great-Britain, and would rather be in dependance on her, properly limited, than on any nation, or no nation, but rather than visit, &c."

If such a sentence, uttered at that time, could be found in the writings of a King, a Strong, or Pickering, it would be printed ten times a year, for ten years, by all the democratic papers, and urged as the most convincing evidence of attachment to Great-Britain.

In the republication of this letter from the Compiler, the Petersburg Intelligencer omits the words "or no nation."

From the Boston Daily Advertiser, April 16.

FRANCE.—We have before us a number of letters from friends abroad which throw a considerable light upon the state of affairs in Europe. Some part of their contents we intend to lay before our readers, beginning with that which relates to France. The following is from a gentleman whose intelligence and opportunities of information are such as to entitle it to great confidence. The reader will form his opinion of the state of the country, from the whole and not from a part.

"I know not what are the opinions adopted by the political writers in our own country, in regard to the probable stability of the French Monarchy, and the consequent duration of peace. As to myself, I have no hesitation in saying, that Louis XVIII. in my opinion, owes his political existence at this moment to the foreign troops in the country. I do not think, however, that I am much better able to judge upon this subject where I am, than I should be, were I in America, and yet there are occurrences, that pass under my eye every day, that strongly mark the state of the public pulse. Sentiments, which are peculiar to individuals, on the subject of politics are very rarely expressed, when they are unfavorable to an existing government; the man who makes them public, must know that he is supported by numbers, or he would not venture. I daily hear, and from many too, that the French nation will not suffer their present degradation to continue long, that the day of retribution shall surely come, when England shall again be humbled, the coalition of the nothern hordes be dissolved, and the Eagles of the Empire once more spread their wings, from the Baltic to the Gulph of Venice. It is not, that any ill will towards the King exists, but there is a want of attachment to him, a general idea that he has only negative qualities, and they look upon him not as the sovereign of their choice, but one imposed upon them by foreign powers. Hatred to the English never was more bitter in France than at present; she has been the instrument of their humiliation and the pillage of their capitol; she has demanded the heavy contributions they are to pay, and imposed upon them the hard conditions of peace, which they were obliged to accept. A natural inquiry to make, is, has not the internal prosperity of France been promoted by the late changes; does not the proprietor of land obtain higher prices for its productions? to which, one must answer at once, that the condition of the country is two-fold better in all these respects.—From what class of the people then are the malcontents to be collected? From the disbanded soldiers and the broken officers of the army; the employers in the former possessions of the empire now restored to their rightful sovesrigns and a long list of those removed in the proper departments of the kingdom; the unquiet spirits who are always plotting revolutions, of which there ever will exist a large proportion in this hot bed of jacobinism, and the great mass of the nation, who will expect to effect what they arrived at in '90, 91, 2. The leaders in this attempt will be men of influence, though out of favor, and they will be opposed by the timid, who fear for their lives and their estates, and the wealthy dignitaries of whom the many are ever jealous; these will soon meet the same fate with the military commandant at Marseilles in 1793, who was murdered at noon day on the public quay, and cut into ounce pieces by the knives of the fish-women.—All that originated the revolution '89, and all that sprung from it must be swept from the stage before France can be secure; the government must then be established by some new dynasty, at the head of which should be a man of Bonaparte's commanding and overawing talents, with a more bounded ambition: the reign of tranquility will then commence, and not before.—Wait till the foreign troops are removed from France before you form a judgment on my predictions. The murder of Charles 1st, the protectorship of Cromwell, the exile of Charles 2d and his after restoration, will not find an exact parallel in the history of the last five and twenty years of France—it will fail in the consequences occasioned by the events in the two countries. Do not laugh too much at my speculations,—I thought nothing would be half so interesting to you and so I spun out the thread."

EUROPEAN PAPERS.

BOSTON, April 17.

By the Milo, from Liverpool, we have received our London files to the 21st of February.

AMERICA AND ENGLAND.

In a debate (Feb. 14th) in the House of Commons, a member said, the spirit of animosity in America would justify an increase of the naval force in the West-Indies. This called up Lord Castlereagh, who said,

"As to America, if it is said great prejudices exist there against us, it must be recollected that great prejudices exist here against her; it was, he said, his most earnest wish to discountenance this feeling on both sides, and to promote between the two nations feelings of reciprocal amity and regard. Certainly there were no two countries whose interests were more naturally and closely connected; and he hoped that the course which the government of each country was pursuing was such as would consolidate the subsisting peace, promote harmony between the nations, and prevent on either side the recurrence of any acts of animosity."

Predictions of commotions in France continued in daily refutation and fabrication. The allied troops had left Paris and the interior of France nearly a month, and yet the progress of tranquility continued uninterrupted.

The pretended difference between Austria and Bavaria had wholly terminated.

Prince Talleyrand lived in great splendor and popularity in Paris. He is said to be one of the richest subjects in France. He enjoyed the entire confidence of the Bourbons.

The Paris papers mention that a reward of 10,000 francs had been proclaimed for the apprehension of Gen. Lefebre Desnouettes. The General has, however, fortunately arrived in the United States, out of reach of his persecutors.

Merlin, (of Douay) one of the 38 persons ordered to leave France as dangerous persons, left Brussels in February last, for the United States.

Accounts from Italy mention that Lucien Bonaparte has converted his property into specie, and has embarked at Civita Vecchia for America.

TAKE WARNING.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on Saturday the 2d day of March last, a Negro Man named JIM, about 23 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches high, somewhat slender and not very black, about a chesnut colour, has a small scar on one of his cheeks, I believe the right, the scar appears to have been made with a knife when small, and is about one inch long, just above the cheek bone. Whoever will apprehend said Negro and confine him in any jail in the state of Pennsylvania or Ohio, so that I may get him, shall have the above reward—and this is to forwarn all persons from hiring or harbouring said Negro, under the penalty of their lives, for after this notice. I am determined to kill any man that I find him in the possession of, without he first ascertains that he is legally free, and I hope all persons will be cautious how they hire slaves.

HEZEKIAH CONN.

April 11, 1816.

N. B. If the above described Negro is apprehended and put in jail, a letter to me at Frontroyal, Frederick county, Virginia, will be immediately attended to.

Doct. N. SMITH,

He likewise feels under the greatest obligations to the citizens of Pittsburgh, for the liberal patronage which he has already received.—He deems it superfluous, even to mention the utility of artificial teeth, as he has inserted a considerable number, since his residence in this place.—Those that entertain doubts respecting the operation, are solicited to witness specimens of his performance. He still continues to insert artificial teeth—to mend, clean and extract natural ones.—The teeth which he inserts, are warranted.—If more convenient, he will attend ladies and gentlemen at their respective places of abode.

DOCTOR CHISHOLM'S

Anti-Bilious Pills,

Of a quality superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a GENERAL MEDICINE, in this Country.

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India Islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates.

This extraordinary Medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuent of Bile, is without example; never producing debility or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child or weakly female.

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excruciating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flaxseed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and DISEASES OF THE LIVER, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case the dose may be increased according to the strength or constitution.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their streugth and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.
